John Capen has been canoeing for about 45 years. From Michigan Rivers and lakes, to the Minnesota Boundary Water Canoe Area Wilderness (BWCAW), and all over Montana, including the Wild and Scenic Missouri River. While living in Great Falls, he owned and operated a canoe and kayak sales and rental business and in the off season built cedar strip canoes. He was a member of the Medicine River Canoe Club in Great Falls and was certified as a Red Cross canoe instructor.

Julie Hoselton - I enjoy reading, photography, gardening, and teaching. I have with my husband been in business in Victor since 1979. Having struggled with my own health issues, I am very excited to share these oils that have a powerful medicinal effect on the body. I also offer classes and private meetings throughout the year to share this information.

Greg Ioder is an avid volleyball enthusiast. He has been participating in co-ed volleyball for a number of years. He also enjoys playing competitively in tournaments around the state and Northwest.

Michael O'Leary is an avid basketball enthusiast. He is a recent graduate of Victor School, where he played on the Varsity Basketball team all through his High School years. Michael has helped with the Victor Basketball Summer Camp for two summers and is one of the MS Girls Basketball coaches this year.

Kelly Price has been a studio potter for over 30 years. She received a Master of Fine Arts degree with an emphasis in ceramics in 1989 and enjoys sharing information about 'playing' in clay. She has lived in Victor for the past 16 years.

Kathleen Sheard is a wildlife artist with glass and graphite as her mediums. Her glass work expanded from stained glass to include fused, slumped, cast, and furnace techniques. Original drawings are now included as part of her professional portfolio.

Kathleen is a member of Society of Animal Artists, Artists for Conservation, Montanan Professional Artists Association, and Artists Along the Bitterroot. One of her elephant fine art pieces was chosen for the Corning Museum New Glass Review #22. Kathleen's work is found in galleries, museums and private collections. She participates in a selection of wildlife and mixed media shows across the United States and teaches her style of wildlife glass in a variety of venues.

In May 2016, Kathleen, along with a team of six artists, will kiln cast her glass sea turtle sculpture called "The Cycle of Life", at The Studio of the Corning Museum of Glass. It has over 40 cast glass parts and includes a sea turtle nest, sea turtle hatchlings, the mother sea turtle, and an encroaching oil spill. Check out her web-site at www.kathleensheard.com.

Steve Wilson is a self-taught artist who works with oils. His artwork has been on tour throughout the northwest in many galleries and museums. He has won best of shows at competitions. Steve has won the 2003 and 2004 Montana Ducks Unlimited duck stamp. He continues to teach at schools and gives private lessons while doing commission work.
